Performance and Accountability

District Performance Index (DPI)

A District Performance Index (DPI) is the average performance of students in a subject area (i.e., ELA, Mathematics or Science) on the state summative assessments. The DPI ranges from 0-100. A DPI is reported for all students tested in a district and for students in each individual student group. Connecticut's ultimate target for a DPI is 75.

<sup>1</sup> NAEP is often called the "Nation's Report Card." It is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education. This table compares Connecticut's performance to that of national public school students. Performance standards for state assessments and NAEP are set independently. Therefore, one should not expect performance results to be the same across Smarter Balanced and NAEP. Instead, NAEP results are meant to complement other state assessment data. <sup>2</sup>The Connecticut Physical Fitness Assessment (CPFA) is administered to students in Grades 4, 6, 8 and High School (HS). The health-related fitness scores gathered through the CPFA should be used to educate and motivate children and their families to increase physical activity and develop lifetime fitness habits.

Next Generation Accountability Results

Connecticut's Next Generation Accountability System is a broad set of 12 indicators that help tell the story of how well a district/school is preparing its students for success in college, careers, and life. It moves beyond test scores and graduation rates to provide a more holistic, multifactor perspective of district and school performance.

Narratives

School District Improvement Plans and Parental Outreach Activities

The Brooklyn Public Schools has a great deal of information available to parents through their website, Facebook and Instagram. Parents who contact the school are welcomed into the school and are greeted by staff who are there to respond to questions and assist them in any way possible. During the pandemic, physical access was limited, but there were times that parents needed to be in person for meetings and other times that they engaged in conferences, meetings, and committees remotely.

Students who receive special education services or in the referral process are provided resources to assist them to understand the referral process as well as the identification and services offered through the public schools. Parents meet with the special education team members to ask questions. The Director of Special Education is available to families, staff and knows all of the students who require specialized instruction. Brooklyn is a small enough district that our staff really know the students and families.

The staff at Brooklyn Schools works collaboratively with families to promote positive attendance patterns. We work to build relationships to support families and students to have good attendance. Staff members are working with area schools to identify best practices to support student attendance to avoid truancy. Staff members meet and notify families early if there are signs of absences that could lead to truancy. We look for the root causes of attendance issues and try to support families. When a student is absent the district contacts the family to follow up on absences if they have not heard about the reason for absence. Administration works with students and families at a young age to communicate the importance of regular attendance. Good attendance is celebrated for all students and for students with truancy concerns are praised for their attendance improvements.

Parents of preschoolers are invited into the school to meet the staff and visit the program. They have a special open house before school starts to assist with this big transition for preschool and kindergarten students! As children move through the grades, parents remain a part of their school life in Brooklyn. Students who transition from elementary to middle school also have a visit planned. They tour the new school and meet the staff. Student leaders assist during this visit. The middle school mentors work with students at the elementary level, building a strong relationship between schools and providing a point of contact as the students move from elementary to middle school. Each year student transitions are planned and parents are informed about the changes. The Brooklyn PTO works with both the elementary and middle schools so that families are included at both levels. The PTO is very active and supportive of programming and special events including the welcome back BBQ, art and music shows, and book character parade. Parents attend concerts, sporting events, and cultural events. The Brooklyn community and Brooklyn families are very supportive of the schools! Parents learn about what students are doing in school through open houses, classroom and school newsletters, Board of Education meetings, social media, and websites. Parents participate in committees and are surveyed annually.

Efforts to Reduce Racial, Ethnic and Economic Isolation

Brooklyn Public Schools treats all students as equals and celebrates individuality and differences in the classroom as well as in the school. We do not have any inter or intra-district choice programs. With two schools, all students are together at each grade level. Classroom instruction and the curriculum promote well-rounded and educated students about people from all races, ethnic and economic backgrounds. The administration has engaged in professional development and conversation about how to increase diversity in our schools.

Instruction begins in preschool and kindergarten with a NAEYC accredited program and this good instruction follows through to grade 8. In addition to the curriculum, teachers look for teachable moments to broaden student awareness and acceptance of everyone. Students learn about racial, ethnic, and economic differences through their related arts and core area classes. Students were engaged in multiple interdistrict grant opportunities and geography fairs that increases their understanding of differences. ELA Units include social action that drives efforts to understand the world beyond Brooklyn Schools. Likewise, texts are selected to raise social awareness related to race, ethnicity, and economic status.

Staff at both schools have been discussing the importance of increasing awareness of racial, ethnic, and economic bias and increasing awareness of implicit bias. Literature has been purchased for student and staff book studies to prompt conversations about these topics. The schools look for ways to celebrate diversity at age-appropriate levels. The middle school has a diversity club that celebrates differences and works to address the acceptance of all students. The elementary school also celebrates differences through themed events.

Equitable Allocation of Resources among District Schools

Allocation of resources is equitable across the district to meet the needs of students at all levels in each school. The leadership team meets to make and review requests for their own programming and that of the other schools. The team works together to determine what is needed and what would be considered priorities. The Board of Education supports building-based budgeting and the community is supportive. Over the years, different buildings have been able to build up different programs and supplies by working together. As the needs change, we have been able to allocate resources evenly but also as needed. Administrators and teachers have the supplies and instructional materials needed to teach the curriculum they are using. All students have equal access to the curriculum and support needed to learn.

Any new or additional grant funds are allocated based on need as well as the purpose of the grant. Needs assessments are completed to ensure that we are gathering information from a wide range of stakeholders before allocation decisions are made.
